1. I am not sure what [redacted] wants from the Office of the Vice President or the Central Intelligence Agency. She cryptically advises that "the justice system, I fear, is about to commit a great mistake by taking away [redacted] right to defend this country." She then advises that "I hesitate to give you the complete details in a letter." [redacted]

Therefore, the assumption has to be made that her problem must center around some injustice, real or imagined, concerning her husband, [redacted] and a person or organization (unidentified, but possibly the United States Air Force or the USAF-Reserve) that is about to take away his "right to defend this country." [redacted]

Dear Mrs. Bush:

I hope your conscience will not allow you to shut the door on my plea for help for I need you. Enclosed is some information that I have sent your husband. I fear that his aids will not forward it to President Reagan. Would you please find it in your heart to make sure he receives my plea for help.

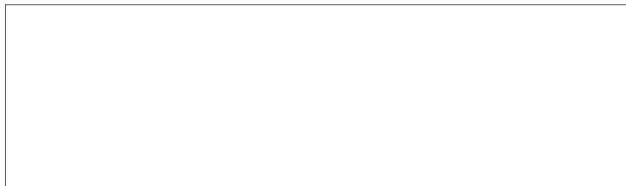

Mrs. Bush, I am a wife who belives in her husband, a mother of two small children , but most of all I am a woman who loves this country. I cannot stand by and what a great injustice take place and not fight for what is right.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear Vice President Bush:

I hope your conscience will not allow you to shut the door on my plea for help for I need you. The justice system, I fear, is about to commit a great mistake by taking away  right to defend this country and in the process  destroying the belief that one does not need to fear our  government.

Vice President Bush, would you please find it in your heart to listen to my husbands story, for time is running out. The rain once again beats against my window for I fear our justice system. Whom do I trust, whom do I give my loyalty to, whom do I lay my life down for?

Sincerely,
